

COURT REBUKES WOMAN'S LAWYER IN DIVORCE SUIT

Justice Brady Warns Gerson to Get Defendant's Written Consent to Abandon Case.

Mrs. Elsie Graves refused to contest the divorce suit filed by her husband, Calvin T. Graves, but she was forced to come to court today and testify. Just one question was asked her. She was charged with making her home at No. 10 East Eighty-first street with Isaac Hamburger, a married man. Her husband, accompanied by two friends, paid her and Hamburger an unexpected visit on the night of Aug. 19 last.

"Where were you living on Aug. 19, 1911?" was the question she was asked to answer.

"At No. 108 East Eighty-first street," she replied.

Mrs. Graves, before her marriage, was an actress. She is a blonde and young. In court today she was dressed in a green tailored suit and wore a green hat with big green willow plumes.

Graves is a traveling salesman. The couple met in 1909 in Peoria, Ill., where the actress was then appearing. The marriage took place soon afterward.

When Graves filed his divorce suit the wife interposed an answer, which was filed by Max Gerson, an attorney at No. 61 Wall street. She made an unsuccessful attempt to get alimony and then dropped all resistance to the suit.

"Why is Attorney Gerson not here?" demanded Justice Brady, who heard the divorce suit.

"A lawyer who files an answer in a divorce suit and then abandons his client on the day of trial should be reported to the Bar Association,"

"I believe he had authority from his client to do so," said Attorney George C. Beach, representing Graves.

At that moment Mr. Gerson walked in and apologized for being late.

"Why have you dropped this case?" Justice Brady demanded.

"I have authority from my client," replied the lawyer.

"Written authority?" asked the Court.

"I can get it in writing."

"Well, you would better do so to satisfy yourself. You might need it," said the Court.

Justice Brady said he would decide the Graves suit later.

Mrs. Isaac Hamburger, it was brought out, sued for divorce, naming Mrs. Graves as co-respondent, following the August evening exposure.

FUNNY FACES.

You'll find many of them drawn by our cartoonists, illustrating tricks, puzzles, conundrums, etc., in a large and interesting way. It's a real make-up of getting into fun. It's a weekly joke book, a new 10-page card of each week with next Sunday's word.

FOOL THE MAYOR, EH? GAYNOR ASKS HOTLY.

After a hearing to-day by the Mayor on a legislative measure to enable the directors of the Association for the Improved Instruction of Deaf Mutes to lease or sell its building on the site at Lexington avenue and Sixty-eighth street, the Mayor asked one of the speakers: "What are you trying to do? make a fool of the Mayor? I have suggested a legal means out of your trouble. Why do you suggest another way?"

The Mayor added that he would not approve the bill. He had refused, he said, to approve a similar bill for the Baptist Home, and was not going to change his attitude. He suggested that as there is some merit in the claim, a commission should be appointed to consider the cases of all institutions occupying city owned land and desiring to change their location, and then have the commission draw up a proper form of legislative relief.

In the case of the institution in question its lease has yet fifty years to run, but the directors want to move to other quarters.

Foremost Clothiers Since 1845.
Special Values

'Tis an obvious thing that minimum productive cost is attainable only through the continued maintenance of capacity production—in other words, it is self-evident that to give you in Smith Gray & Co. clothes the greatest possible values, that great big tailoring plant over in Williamsburg must maintain top speed and full capacity day in and day out the year through.

To bring this about it becomes necessary that we produce and sell nearly twice as many garments as formerly, and that this may be we have developed certain special values, the results of between season keep-busy work, surplus yardages and attractive underprice fabric purchases.

It is no exaggeration to say that these special values outshine any special ever produced. Every garment is a Smith Gray & Co. garment—tailored by the Smith Gray & Co. tailoring organization, the superior of which does not exist.
